From STUDENTS OF MEDICINE in the University of Aberdeen.

ABERDEEN, April 5, 1867.

TO PROFESSOR STRUTHERS.

DEAR SIR,—It will give us much pleasure if you will accept of the following Address, which has been cordially subscribed by the Medical Students of this University, to be used as you may think most proper, in your present application for the Anatomical Chair in Edinburgh. As our wishes to offer you such a Memorial have unfortunately not been put in practice sooner, many who would have desired to add their signatures have left Aberdeen, but we beg of you to overlook any inadvertency in our hurried attempt, within one day of the close of the Session, to express our appreciation of your merits as a Teacher, and our sincere hopes for the success of your present aspiration.

We are,

SIR,

Yours respectfully,

JAMES TRIGUE CROWDEN.

R. I. QUINNELL.

PATRICK NICOL.

UNIVERSITY OF ABERDEEN,

April 5, 1867.

We, the undersigned, Medical Students of Aberdeen, understanding that Professor Struthers, of this University, is a candidate for the Chair of Anatomy in the University of Edinburgh, while fully sensible of what we should lose by his withdrawal from amongst us, desire to record our warm sense of gratitude for benefits conferred on us by his teaching, and our appreciation of his untiring efforts on our behalf. While testimony from us is unnecessary, and would be out of place, with regard to his scientific attainments, we may be permitted to express our belief that in no Medical School in the country is Anatomy more thoroughly taught in all its branches. The lectures are rendered most attractive by being at once lucid and scientifically exhaustive, and the practical work of the dissecting rooms most instructive and profitable by the great facilities he has introduced. No Professor could be more devoted to the best interests of his pupils, more enthusiastic in the cultivation of Anatomical science, or more fitted to exert on all around him an elevating and stimulating influence. We most cordially wish him success in his present ambition. The many and important changes for the better effected by him during his tenure of office here, together with the permanent benefits conferred by his teaching, are at once the best proofs of his fitness for, and the strongest arguments in favour of his receiving, a still higher position.

From STUDENTS IN ARTS AND DIVINITY in the University of Aberdeen.

UNIVERSITY OF ABERDEEN,

April 5, 1867.

PROFESSOR STRUTHERS,

Aberdeen.

DEAR SIR,—The accompanying Testimonial, signed by Students of the University in the Faculties of Arts and Divinity, is respectfully presented for your acceptance. We regret that, the Session having closed, the departure of many of the Students for their homes has prevented its being more numerously signed, but even as it is, we beg of you to accept it, together with our best wishes for your success.

We beg to remain,

DEAR SIR,

Your obedient Servants,

JAMES WISEMAN.

JOHN ARCHIBALD.

To JOHN STRUTHERS, Esq., M.D.

UNIVERSITY OF ABERDEEN,

April 5, 1867.

We, the undersigned Students in the Faculties of Arts and Divinity in the University of Aberdeen, hearing that you are a candidate for the Chair of Anatomy in the University of Edinburgh, although we have not had the privilege of attending your regular course of instruction in Anatomical Science, yet desire to testify our appreciation of your efforts to render the Science of Anatomy popular among the students of the non-medical faculties. Your course of lectures will ever be remembered with gratitude and pleasure by the hundreds of our number who flocked to hear them. The interest with which you contrived to invest a scientific subject in the eyes of persons unversed in its technicalities, yet charmed by your eloquence, is an evidence at once of your power as a lecturer, and of your skill in adapting instruction to every variety of audience. We sincerely wish you all success in your present aspirations.
